

Six Must-do Crafted Experiences at The Hilltop

The signature pool shot at The Hilltop in Six Senses Yao Noi, overlooking the iconic limestone karsts of Phang Nga Bay, has always been the highlight of stays at the resort – taking the spotlight on your Instagram feed, sparking holiday envy amongst friends and family. But with the recent facelift, you will definitely find more to The Hilltop than just the pool.

1. Private Sunrise Breakfast

A table for two with a lush breakfast spread takes center stage at The Hilltop as the sun rises over the iconic limestone karsts of Phang Nga Bay. This is the epitome of the phrase “the early bird gets the worm”. Sleepwalking up the short flight of stairs to The Hilltop at six in the morning may not be the first thing you think of doing on vacation. However, eating a delicious breakfast prepared to your liking just as the sky becomes illuminated with 50 shades of orange is worth every yawn.

2. Feel On Top Of The World

You don’t have to be Jack Dawson from the blockbuster movie Titanic to be shouting, “I’m the king of the world” to feel like it. All it takes is a few strokes across the pool at The Hilltop towards the edge where you can stare out to the beautiful canvas animated by Mother Nature. The calm ocean, with occasional fishing boat passing through, creates an almost-hypnotic experience that earned its claim as the signature of the resort.

3. Sipping Signature Cocktails

Sugar, spice and everything nice (including one of the best views in the world) make the perfect selection of cocktails, like the ones served at The Hilltop's bar. Infused with local flavors and ingredients that have been freshly picked from one of the resort's many organic gardens, the cocktails make for an authentic Thai experience. Imagine lounging by the pool, sipping a Lemongrass Cosmo while watching the sky change color as the sun sets and the fantastical shapes of the limestone karsts slowly dissolve into the night.

4. Get That Insta-Famous Shot

Redefine the Warhol-inspired "15 minutes of fame" with an Instafamous shot of yourself up at The Hilltop. From the oh-so-familiar infinity pool shot backed by the iconic limestone karsts, to a playful shot on the hanging bridge, have some fun striking your best pose. Our favorite moment is when the reflection of the sky in the pool sets the stage for an #OutOfTheOrdinary shot. How would that lead you to Instafame? Simple! Post your favorite shots on Instagram using the hashtag #SixSensesYaoNoi and you might just see them featured on our media.

5. Dinner Under the Full Moon

Mood swings, parties and werewolves aside, the full moon at Six Senses Yao Noi takes a brighter spin with romantic dinners at The Hilltop. With world-class chefs passionately preparing dinner using the freshest catch of the day from fishermen on the island, you're definitely in for a gastronomic journey to remember – especially with wine pairing options, thoughtfully crafted by Khun Sabu, our resident sommelier. After dinner, dance in the moonlight to the sound of silence and the vibes of nature as the stars align overhead.

6. Olive Oil Tasting

Smell, sip, slurp ... that's how the tasting goes at The Tasting Room with olive oil aficionado, Executive Chef Walter Butti. Featuring a plethora of olive oils from all over Europe, including the top ranked Castillo de Canena Family Reserve Picual from Spain, the tasting promises a whole new appreciation for the precious elixir. Accompanied by Chef Walter's offbeat and unique insights into the world of culinary goodness, the experience won't be just a treat for your palate, but for your soul. And if that's not enough, wait till Chef Walter whips out the balsamic surprise: it will keep coming back for more!
